

Hello! We are Tyrell and Jessica. We are so thankful to be considered as potential adoptive parents for your baby should you decide to make an adoption plan. We have great respect for the decision you are making and hope that this letter gives you an idea of our character and values.

We met online in 2018 and have been married for 2.5 years. During the length of our marriage we have struggled with infertility and miscarriage. As the desire to grow our family developed, we realized that we were drawn to the idea of adoption. We are both excited to start this new journey together.

Tyrell can best be described as fun-loving, strong, kind, patient, and always up for an adventure. He has an infectious laugh and his big grin lights up any room. He is wonderful with children and has an ability to magically calm almost any crying baby. He is very proud of his status as favorite uncle. Tyrell is a man of many skills. He grew up working with his Dad on construction sites. This taught him about dirt work/landscaping, painting, framing, concrete work, and other construction trades. At his current job he installs insulation, paints tanks/vessels, and even sews up insulation blankets (and the occasional duffel bag). He loves a good sauna (built in his parents' backyard), a day spent riding a 4-wheeler or side-by-side, camping, hunting, and beef and potatoes in any form. He looks forward to teaching a child to hunt, fish, grill, mow the lawn, perform vehicle/small engine maintenance, and do simple carpentry.

Jessica is kind, loving, great with kids, and puts a smile on Tyrell's face whenever she walks into the room. Tyrell often says that his favorite thing about her is her "spunky" attitude. She enjoys helping her sister-in-law who homeschools by teaching an arts and craft class to her nieces and nephew a few times every r&r. Jessica was raised on a farm and still misses being able to garden and harvest fresh produce. She looks forward to being able to garden every summer once she can be a stay at home mom. She likes quilting, scrapbooking, baking, cooking, camping, kayaking, and hiking on a warm, sunny day. Jessica looks forward to teaching a child how to cook, bake, garden, sew, and introducing a little one to her love of berry picking every year.

While we are not parents yet, we know that this is not a responsibility to take lightly. We promise to raise our family to know the importance of our Christian faith and the importance of our family-oriented lifestyle. We will instill values of honesty, integrity, compassion, respect, patience, and a strong work ethic.

Thank you again for taking the time to get to know us. We would like to foster a healthy relationship with you if you would so choose. Even if you prefer minimal contact, you will always be considered a part of our hearts and we will share our love and respect for you with our child. We pray that you will find peace and comfort in whatever decision that you make.

With love,

Tyrell + Jessica
